Coca-Cola, Kraggs And Uncle Sam (A Brief History of U.S. Imperialism in the Philippines) Chris Pforr
An easy to read, illustrated history of U.S. imperialism in the Philippines. In 1521, the Spanish conquered the Philippines with sword, the cross and God. In 1898, the Americans arrived. Instead of swords and crosses, they brought... Coca-Cola, Kraggs and Uncle Sam. What they are saying... "this book chronologically presents the history of how the Philippines was invaded and colonized by the United States. It is an important contribution to the literature on U.S. imperialism in the Philippines. Our young Filipino readers will enjoy reading this essential book. For despite the past injustices and continuing inequality, there is a way forward for Philippine-U.S. relations." -- Professor Roland Silbulan, University of the Philippines "This significant book provides a useful and digestible historical framework for any serious student of history whose purpose is to familiarize and learn the history of the Philippines. The inside pages are flooded with caricatures you'll want to look at again and again." -- Geneva Arellano Solomon, Cebu high school teacher " This book is an important contribution because the history of U.S. imperialism is not past, it is present. And by narrating that history in a way that is informative without being pedantic, entertaining without being trivial, Chris Pforr empowers us to confront and challenge that present." -- Herber Docenta, author of At the Door of All the East: The Philippines in U.S. Military Strategy.
