Those Who Ride the Night Winds: Poems Nikki Giovanni

Nikki Giovanni is our most widely read living black poet, and in her most accessible collection to date, we become aware of the poet as a human being we can relate to, someone affected by and concerned with events. The title of this collection refers to people who have tried to make changes, people who have gone against the tide, people who were unafraid to test their wings. Included are poems about John Lennon, Billie Jean King, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Robert Kennedy. There are poems about friends, lovers, mothers, and about the poet herself. Long known as the "Princess of Black Poetry," Nikki Giovanni, at forty-one, is as alive and vibrant as ever. Her many readers will find once again in her latest collection the warmth, wit, passion, and caring about people that have always distinguished her work. Strong, direct, tremendously energetic, visionary, vulnerable, and real, these poems reveal a great spirit among us; a woman in her human dimension; a person all readers can identify with and believe in. "Giovanni is like the poetry she writes-warm, sensitive and gentle but yet fiery, piercing and most of all-right on target." GAIL COLLINS The Journal Herald, Dayton, Ohio "As the Princess of Black Poetry, Giovanni has not inherited a jeweled crown or the fairy tale powers that go with royalty. Instead she has been crowned for her gift of words that cause people to nod their heads with pleasure." -GAYLE HARDEN, The Cincinnati Post "She has etched her profile in . . . verse which transcends the rhetoric of revolution and forms the essence of . . . love embracing life." -L. M. COLLINS, The Tennessean "As the poet laureate of young Black women and sensitive souls everywhere Nikki Giovanni is a peeping tom who has stolen a look inside ourselves." -The Gannet News Service - Nikki Giovanni, best-selling author of 'My House', 'The Women and the Men', and 'Cotton Candy on a Rainy Day', lives . in Cincinnati, Ohio, with her son.
